Farm News

New Tobacco Finds Place in Appomattox Agriculture

Farmers of the Middle East for many years have considered aromatic tobacco their main source of income. Recently it was introduced in the Southeastern United States. Experimental plantings and curing processes were set up to determine if it could be produced economically. Is could, and first plantings were made in the mountain areas. The demand was so great that these areas were extended to the Piedmont.

Aromatic tobacco is important as a blend in practically all domestic cigarettes.

Fred Jones, of the Red House area grew .77 acres this year and produced 950 pounds, which brought $765.67.

Next year, Fred is thinking in terms of putting on the proper type of curing system and planting two acres.

Cost for producing the crop this year was: oil, $60.95; electricity, $6.00; lumber and wire, $7.50; fertilizer, $39.00; labor, $300.45; thus a net of $361.77.

Dark-fired growers might well give this type tobacco another look, for the supply situation with fire-cured tobacco is not at all good. At the present time, there is no allotment available. It is conceivable that within the next ten years there will be those who would like to grow some but because of certain restrictions, it will be impossible.

ART EXHIBITION AT ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

On display in the halls of the Appomattox Elementary School is an exhibition, Egypt, which is a loan from the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. It is a series of 33 aluminum-mounted photographic panels with pictures of what is left, and a discussion of what cannot be shown, of what have been the most advanced civilization the world has ever known.

The exhibition was prepared by Life Magazine under the direction of W. C. Hayes, of the Department of Egyptology, at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. It contains excellent enlarged photographs of pyramids, statuary, and the mysterious sphinxes. The text on each panel tells what the site was like during the long ascendancy of Egypt from 2780 to 332 B C.

The exhibition, Egypt, will remain in the school through November 20.

Appomattox Elementary School is a Group Member of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. Group membership may be obtained through application to State Services, Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, Boulevard and Grove, Richmond.

Among membership privileges are exhibitions such as the one on display here now; the use of slides, filmstrips and films; the receipt of Museum publications; the use of Members' Suite during visits to the headquarters in Richmond, free admission to the Museum and Artmobile, and a special meeting annually at the Museum.

Individual memberships also are offered by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL P.-T. A. MEETING

The P.-T. A. of the Appomattox Elementary School will meet at the school on Thursday, Nov. 19, at 8 P. M. Classrooms will be open at 7:30 P. M. for room visitation. The teachers will be in each room to meet the parents.

Present for the program will be Dr. Edgar M. Johnson, General Supervisor of Student Teachers, from Longwood College. He will present the student teachers who were in the schools in this county for the first eight weeks of the current session.

The faculty and personnel of the Appomattox Elementary School were invited by the Executive Committee of the P.-T. A. to a coffee hour held in the school library at 10 A .M. Thursday. This was in observance of American Education Week.

The Executive Committee is composed of Mrs. S. S. Shouse, Mrs. J. S. Grinels, Mrs. C. G. O'Brien, Mrs. A. R. Harwood, Jr.; Mrs. T. M. Trent, Mrs .C. T. Moes, Jr., and Mrs. C C Poe.

Patrons of the school took over the classes while the teachers were out of the rooms.

Immediately following the coffee hour, observance of Veterans Day was presented to the classrooms by the use of the intercommunication system by Miss Flora Belle Williams, principal. A short history of Veterans Day was given, followed by a poem, "In Flander's Fields," by Mrs. Bessie Mattox, school secretary, and a prayer by Miss Williams.

Kenny Foundation Sponsoring New Polio Oral Vaccine Tests

Minneapolis, Minn.—The end of polio world wide is in sight but the final battle still must be fought, according to Marvin L. Kline, national executive director of the Sister Kenny foundation.

A recent international conference in Washington, D.C., of outstanding polio scientists from 20 nations brought their combined wisdom to bear on live virus polio vaccines which can be taken by mouth instead of injection and which, it is agreed, have many advantages over the killed-virus vaccine now in wide use in the United States

The meeting was under the joint sponsorship of the Kenny foundation and the Pan American Health Organization of the World Health Organization. It was agreed that some problems in connection with the live virus vaccines must be worked out yet and a second international meeting is planned to assess further tests and trials with the product.

Three different types of such vaccines, all developed in this country, already have been tried upon more than five million people in various countries of the world with seeming success. Control tests in the United States, Kline said, have been confined for the most part to the University of Minnesota under joint sponsorship of the Kenny foundation and the Minnesota State Department of Health.

A 1958 test at the university led to mass tests that summer in Colombia and Nicaragua. In a 1959 test members of student families were fed all three strains of live polio virus in a single dose of cherry flavored liquid. Results of this still are being assessed.

The live virus vaccine is weakened to the point where it protects without giving the disease by passage through a variety of tissue materials. It is much cheaper to produce than the killed virus vaccine and can be administered with greater ease.

The vaccines are not licensed yet for use in the United State although several other nations now are using them, Kline declares. The next year or so should give a definite answer for all countries.

Meanwhile, Kline said, staff and facilities of the Kenny foundation remain geared to deal with such polio outbreaks as may occur. Until the final battle is won, the fight against this dread crippling disease must continue with determined vigor, he added.

a peep-look at the neighbors who are busy with this chore. But, when I look at such glorious trees as those in the front yard of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robertson, along 460, I am convinced that trees are worth while and the leaf raking is a cheap price to pay for such beauty.

I set out a chestnut tree the other day, and will just have to wait and see what happens!

Speaking of Rev. Hite, the other evening (and, my, aren't the days getting short) we were down along The Old Oakville Road, looking for Civil War relics, and the Rev. Hite drove up and joined us. He seemed so interested in our local project of rounding up Civil War relics, and stuck with us until we found two bullets, a button and a buckle!
